Q: Accessing sitecore REST API with Jersey I would like to access Sitecore from an Android app, currently I'm trying to access it through REST api, following is my piece of code: public String getToken() throws ClientProtocolException, IOException { HttpClient httpclient = HttpClients.createDefault(); HttpGet httpget = new HttpGet(""); httpget.setHeader(new BasicHeader("Authorization", "Bearer " + accessToken)); httpget.setHeader(new BasicHeader("Content-Type", "application/json"); HttpResponse response = httpclient.execute(httpget); HttpEntity responseEntity = response.getEntity(); try { return EntityUtils.toString(responseEntity); } catch (ParseException e) { e.printStackTrace(); } return null; } However in this code nothing is returned and the return type is always null. I can successfully access Sitecore with curl and Postman with the following request: curl "" -H "Authorization: Bearer [myAccessToken]" -H "Content-Type: application/json" -d "{ "grouping": { "columns": ["Customer Name", "Project Name"], "rows": { "expand": true } } }" I'm guessing the problem comes from the fact that I'm using Jersey and my request is not following the correct protocol format. Thank you! A: The configuration you post to above URL it is a SOAP request not REST as the request body you pass to that request is in JSON format and not so well XML format.
