I have registered a custom class loader using javassist. In the getSubClass i am passing the subclass and an instance of the original class. The returned subclass has a getCollection() method which results in a NotSerializable exception. How can i get the field from that subclass to the original class instance? The SubclassField and the SubclassClass do share a lot of references. I do not see how I can get the right one. Thanks! A: I

Serum and urinary creatinine and creatine clearances were studied in normal dogs before, during and after potassium chloride administration. Before potassium chloride administration, renal function (creatinine clearance) was evaluated in each dog as good (greater than 50% of previously observed values) or bad (less than 50% of previously observed values). Then a single 0.5 mEq. KCl/kg i.v. was administered and renal function was evaluated again 30 and 60 minutes later. Fifteen dogs had good renal function. A significant increase in serum and urinary creatinine and creatine clearances were observed during potassium chloride administration, with no changes in serum and urinary creatinine and urea clearances. The increase in creatine clearance seems to be related to the reduction in tubular reabsorption of creatine, which is probably due to chloride-induced hyperpolarization of the distal tubular cells.
