Dragons of Fortune.B2C2 Solution: Smartwatches Smartwatches are one of those products that are all over the recent news cycle and, therefore, are getting more attention than ever before. Their companies are trying to make the next huge leap forward and ride the wave of a new wave of wearables that have been surfacing in the last few years. Some believe that this type of product will become the next iPhone of the tech industry. However, smartwatches are nothing more than a fancy wearable which typically have a display, a touch interface, and an app store. Why this is the type of "product" we are talking about here, and what makes it different from other smartwatches is the ability to have apps and interact with the consumer, and they can do so in a more organic fashion without having to be constantly engaged in their day. B2C2 is a company that is looking to improve the designs of these smartwatches and create a more refined experience for the consumer. The team is thinking about how best to improve app store design, the user interface, and the overall user experience. The company is already taking a step in this direction by offering designs that are much more aesthetically pleasing. The team is also trying to incorporate a more interactive element into these watches by using an app that does not just perform the watch duty and is able to do more. For example, they are currently developing an app that will allow a mom to check in on her kids and see what they are doing and what they have been up to, on the go. This is a smartwatch, but it's one that is able to perform multiple duties. There is a lot of room for improvement in the design, and B2C2 is considering ways of improving that experience for the consumer. Temnora albiplaga Temnora albiplaga is a moth of the family Drepanidae first described by Philipp Christoph Zeller in 1839. It
