The teenage girl who survived severe injuries, including a fractured spine, multiple skull fractures, burns, both eyes blown out and brain damage has been told she will never walk or talk again and is expected to remain in a coma for up to two years. It has not yet been decided whether she will be able to open her eyes which are already slightly opened - or even hear, said her father, who appeared via

Skype with her mother during a press conference at the Royal Melbourne Hospital. The family also pleaded for help from the public to fund an operation to fix Sophia's skull fractures. Sophia's mum was so overwhelmed with emotion, her voice broke while she began to speak about her daughter. "I want to know how she is, I want to know what she looks like. I want to see her," she said. "I want to know if she is aware of her surroundings or does she know what's going on." Sophia's father said he was not prepared to consider giving up on his daughter. "I'm not prepared to just give up in the belief that she will never be the same again. I'm not prepared to give up on my daughter and lose the person she once was because I think I'll have to first lose myself," he said. "Please help us raise money for an operation to fix Sophia's broken bone so we can see her and hopefully help us understand how she is. We don't want to learn this the hard way. "The only way to know how much her life will improve is to have an operation." The family said Sophia's life was "at stake" because there were many medical procedures and procedures scheduled to fix her injuries. "Until you've been in their shoes, you can't understand how difficult they are for us," Mr Kosnar said. Sophia was admitted to hospital on the morning of July 28 after suffering complications from the day before, when she was rushed to hospital by paramedics after falling at her Surfers home. The family have been told Sophia suffered severe injuries to her brain, skull and face. Mr Kosnar said his daughter was a "shining light" who her mother had described as a $\epsilon$ e79caf774b
