Participation of L3/L4 and L5/S1 Articulations in Trunk Movement. The present study aimed to evaluate the role of the lumbar and sacroiliac (SI) joints in flexion and extension in individuals with chronic low back pain (cLBP) who were matched with healthy participants (HP) with respect to age, gender, and body mass index (BMI). Transversal study with cross-sectional design. Participants were evaluated with the Hannover Functional Ability Questionnaire (JFHAN), and they were evaluated for lumbar mobility (interval extension/flexion, flexion in the sagittal plane, and right/left rotation) and lumbar stiffness (interval flexion/extension and anterior/posterior tilting), followed by kinematic measurements (surface EMG, motion capture, and force plate). The statistical analysis was performed using the Mann-Whitney test (pQ: How can I set up a MacBook to play.mp3 files from a network drive? I'm trying to connect my MacBook to a 192.168.2.x network share which contains a collection of ~15,000 MP3 files. The laptop doesn't currently have an internal player. The music is intended for personal use by my family, friends, etc. I've had it working in the past (the music showed up on the laptop's desktop and I could copy them to a playlist) but I'm not sure what I need to set up at the MacBook end. Are there any preferences that need to be set? I've never set up an audio network, so I'm not entirely sure what to expect. Thanks!

[Study on the determination of trace elements in Traditional Chinese medicine based on ICP-MS]. In recent years, based on the application of ICP-MS technology, some methods were used to determine trace elements in Traditional Chinese Medicine. However, most of them were indirect determination methods. The valence of element was not analyzed. The instrument and sample preparation method are always a key factor in quantitative analysis. In this paper, six trace elements were selected as standards to set the quality control of the determination of trace elements in traditional Chinese medicine, and single element was used to detect the dissociation state of the instrument, which can optimize the detection condition and improve the detection accuracy. In order to study the behavior of the instrument in interlock, the sample was added with other elements, which could be used to analyze the dissociation state of the other elements of the sample. In order to study the effect of various sample preparation methods on the determination results of trace elements in traditional Chinese medicine, the acid washing solution was used to remove the impurities, and the pH value of the extraction solution was adjusted to be optimal before performing the traditional extraction. The results showed that the instrument had good quality, and the recovery rates of the six metals were high. The average recovery rates of the six elements were in the range of 83%-111%, and the RSDs were less than 5%.
