A multicentre, open-label, prospective study was performed to assess the efficacy and safety of rifabutin (RIF) in 723 patients with pulmonary tuberculosis. Patients received daily RIF as part of therapy for 12 weeks (weeks 0-12) or if they were intolerant to rifampin, or if they had an extra-pulmonary form of tuberculosis. Sputum cultures assessed drug sensitivity before week 0 and at the end of therapy (week 12). The global efficacy of treatment, which was based on the sputum culture status at the end of therapy, was 66.9% for all patients. The efficacy for patients with pulmonary tuberculosis was 79.8%. Clinical cures were achieved by 61.3% of all patients. The overall cure rate for patients with pulmonary tuberculosis was 74.9% compared with a lower cure rate of 53.4% for patients with extra-pulmonary tuberculosis. The overall multidrug-resistant tuberculosis (MDR-TB) rate was 9.2%. A total of 11 patients had a relapse after an initial clinical cure. The most common adverse effects were gastrointestinal, with 11.7% of patients experiencing at least one drug-related adverse event. Laboratory abnormalities were rare. RIF is efficacious and well tolerated in the treatment of patients with pulmonary and extra-pulmonary TB.

The latest riot occurred on Friday, October 24, when workers were cleaning and restoring the Spitzer Space Telescope, which is housed inside STScI's huge, four-story dome. During a cleaning and restoration project to convert the instrument from a stand-by science observation mode into an operational one, demonstrators scuffled with workers, damaged one of the instruments inside the dome, and filled it with water, ruining the instrument and disconnecting it from its power source. According to a statement released late last night by the Space Telescope Science Institute (STScI), some of the demonstrations were provoked by a nearby group of officials from NASA who attempted to separate the two groups of demonstrators. The officials, who are also working for NASA, reportedly called for assistance from STScI's security forces, only to have the demonstrators chase them away.STScI officials issued this statement late last night: "The Space Telescope Science Institute (STScI) was the victim of an unprovoked riot by angry protesters on Friday, October 24th. STScI is deeply troubled by the behavior of those who participated in the riot, and STScI officials cannot understand why the riot occurred. "On Friday, STScI officials contacted the local police department and requested assistance from federal security personnel in dealing with the troublemakers. These officials were at the building for approximately ten hours, trying to control the crowd. The local police officers were especially sympathetic to their efforts and tried to handle the
