KMSpico 20.10.4 (Windows And Office Activator) Download Pc bdQ: Get a folder's children recursively I have two apps A & B. App A has a folder named A and another named AB. Inside the folder A has another folder called AB1. Under this folder I would like to have a list of all folders within A which will be put into a List of List. I have this code: var list = new List<>(); DirectoryInfo dir = new DirectoryInfo(@"C:\folder"); var files = dir.GetFiles().ToList(); foreach (var item in files) { list.Add(Convert.ToString(item)); } The code works fine but is there a way to do the same thing but get all the children and list them recursively? A: If what you are trying to accomplish is to get a list of all folders in a given path, then you are looking for DirectoryInfo.GetDirectories It returns an IEnumerable of all sub-directories. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a reflective mirror device for an automobile, which is capable of changing a reflectance of incident light upon a mirror surface thereof and of decreasing a weight thereof. 2. Description of the Related Art In the past, a reflective mirror device for an automobile was designed to automatically change a reflectance of the mirror surface of a reflective mirror upon incidence of light upon the mirror surface for the purpose of improving safety for a driver. Accordingly, in recent years, in order to achieve a reflective mirror device capable of providing an appropriate reflective mirror, as well as satisfying the aforementioned objective of safety, a research has been performed in relation to reduction of a weight and an overall size of the reflective mirror device. The reflective mirror device (i.e. reflective mirror unit) has been arranged to be integrated with an inside mirror surface of a wind shield glass (window glass) of an automobile. Conventionally, a reflective mirror device for an automobile has been constructed as disclosed in, for example, JP-A-2003-65128, JP- 6d1f23a050
