Key is pressed and held while Ctrl is pressed or Ctrl+Key is pressed, then CTRL is released or CTRL+Key is released. KeyRepeat Description: Press and release a key repeatedly. The key will stay down until it is pressed again. Ok here is a hack for windows... Make your own hotkey. Make the following file Search for "Control Panel" from My Computer Click on the Advanced tab Click on the "Hotkeys" tab Click on the plus sign Enter the following code in the text box #include HWND hwnd = (HWND)g_findWindow("Calculator", NULL); if (hwnd) { SendMessage(hwnd, WM_SYSKEYDOWN, VK_DIVIDE, 0); SendMessage(hwnd, WM_SYSKEYUP, VK_DIVIDE, 0); } Save the file to any folder and run it. I have done the same thing for my Nokia 5800 phone but my phone had no calculator so i made my own hack on my phone. 1. Make your own hotkey 2. Make the following file 3. Save the file to any folder 4. Add the following code to the file 5. Run the file Windows 7 search bar is disabled by default, meaning when the search box is on the taskbar, it won't show up in the taskbar. Open up the registry and create the following key: "HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Microsoft\Windows\CurrentVersion\Explorer\Advanced" and set the value to 1 Replace the value in the registry, and the search bar will work. This works in Windows 8 as well. I use the same technique in Windows 8. Thanks for posting this step by step how to hack your calculator key for Windows. I'll be using this on my phone for getting my calculator key to open the calculator on the Windows phone... I couldn't find the Hotkeys even after enabling the Advanced tab, I am using Windows 7 Professional x64 Hi, I'm using Windows 7 Professional x64. There is no the "Hotkeys" tab in the Advanced tab. I tried to add the following code to the code above. 2edc1e01e8

Windows Calculator that is bundled with Windows 7 does not support the division key. *
