Not only are there many bicycle-friendly facilities built or rebuilt, but bike riding is good for the body and soul in summer. City Councilors on the 13-member South Shore Board are particularly supportive of bicycle infrastructure, and they have put up a bike friendly street network for their constituents. The result is that bike riding is the ideal mode of transportation in Revere and South Boston. The route is 13.6 miles from Ward 8 to Ward 15, and it includes 24 miles of street that have been upgraded from minimal bike facilities to full bike facilities. After decades of underinvestment in the South Shore, Mayor-elect Martin Walsh and the City Council have made a big push to put the region on par with the rest of the state in terms of bicycling. One of Walsh's first acts was to invite Transportation Secretary Stephanie Pollack to Boston to talk about transportation infrastructure. Walsh has put the bike infrastructure plans for the region into motion, and he is having a lot of success. Get the Daily Download Our news roundup delivered every
