A Cartoon on Adult Swim from the creators of "South Park".Also, turn your power supply on and off numerous times a day. This should create a bit of a habit for you that when you turn it on you see "no power" and then "Oh, it's working." This will eventually teach your electronics to shut themselves off in light of a lack of power. I've done it, and it works. Are you using a USB adaptor to charge your phone? If so then be sure to use the USB cable (not the AC adapter) for that. That's the only way it will charge. If your AC adapter is the only charging option your phone will stay in a "unlocked" state. This can be somewhat annoying to some people. Are you using a USB adaptor to charge your phone? If so then be sure to use the USB cable (not the AC adapter) for that. Also, I'm sorry to repeat your post, but I know it didn't get through. Also, are you using a wall wart? Or a battery? If a wall wart then it probably has a yellow plug and a red/white plug. If it has a battery then it might be a big 9V battery. It will have a red plug (some are black, some are white, some are blue, some are yellow... They all have
